The Heir to the Austrian Throne and Baroness Marie Vetsera Die Together in the Same Bed According to a Previously Arranged Program-Other For-

VIENNA, Feb. 8.-The following is published as the authentic details regarding the tragic death of Crown Prince Rudolph: Archings Rudolph has paid court to the beautiful Baroness Marie Vetsern for four months, and it is stated that Countess Wallersee Larisch, a niece of Empress Elizabeth, encouraged the liason. Baroness Marie had a romantic and nervous temperament and was devoted to Rudolph. The pair started in a closel carriage drawn by two horses, on the 28th of January, for Meyerling.

They spent the next day together, and on the morning of the 30th both were found dead in the prince's bed. Marie was shot through the forehoad, and Ru lolph as alrendy described. It is evident that the guilty couple resolved to die together. The coverlet waystrown with flowers. A workman who had inhaled the vapor of burning coals was taken to the Charite lately. All efforts to restore consciousness having failed, Professor Leyden ordered the injection of 250 cubic centimeters of blood taken from another patient, into one of the veins of the right arm. The patient showed signs of life five hours after the transfusion, then slept for about ten hours and awoke in excellent spirits. His further recovery was rapid, and he is now quite well.

Supper After the Play. The Sun is asked "whether it is considered good form to take a young lady to supper after a performance at the theatre.

Authorities differ. If you think the young lady is hungry, however, you might be justified in doing so, even though you should limit your own lunchcons for a week afterward to make good the expense incurred. Secondarily, it depends upon the girl. Plump girls are not apt to order and cat as voraciously as thin girls. This is according to Max Muller and Professor often check the feminine tendency toward terrapin after the play. Moreover, you should be guided in some degree by details of time and place. If you have been at the German opera, the difference of an hour or two in getting home will not weigh with the bons early in the evening, however, will

home authorities.
But, seriously, if you have been at the theatre until say 11 p. m., if there is a married lady in the party, it is well enough to ask the crowd to cat, as they say in Leadville. But if you are escorting a young lady without a chaperon it is in better taste to say nothing about supper, since there is a distinct projudice against young ladies going into restaurants at that hour except in a party where at least one married lady is apt to be found.

This idea is sensible and good and most people see its fitness. Where young people are very old friends they may feel like taking a little latitude in such matters. There can be no possible harm in the act, but as it is liable to provoke unkindly comment, the young gentleman should consider that any special comment by strangers upon a lady is in itself most undesirable in every way, and he should reflect that other people have no means of knowing that he and his companion are more to each other than mere acquaintances in society -New York Sun.

The Gimlet Man.

"I should like to sell you a gimlet," said a careworn looking man, as he walked into the office the other day. -"We have no use for one," replied the cashier.

"But you should always look into the misty future," went on the fiend, demurely. "Next winter you will want to make holes in your boot heels so you can get your skates on."

Promoters of Existence.

Discuse is a mean fellow; it always strikes a man when he's down. Two men come into a car together-one overworked, depressed, worried and exhausted, the other interested in his work, which employs every faculty to the uttermost, comfortable and happy, with the conviction that his wife is the dearest woman in the world, his children as bright as any one's children, and that ho usual, striking both men. They both take cold; one has pueumonia and dies, and the other a cold in his head, which he succees away in two days. It is easy to draw the inference and with it to deduce the formula that comfort, cheerfulness and hopefulness are the best promoters of existence. - Dr. Shrady.

Hope Deferred.

"Go to bol, sir, in the closet there," said an enraged father to a son who had given him just cause of offense: "were it not that these gentlemen are present I would give you a sound whipping, but you shall have it before breakfast tomorrow, certain." The little rebel went to his crib with a heavy heart, and the enjoyments of the party continued until a late hour. Just when the party was about to break up, the closet door was quietly pulled back and the young of-fender put out his head, requesting that the sentence might be put in execution. "Father, would ye just gio me my liks this night, for I canna sleep without them?"-London Telegraph.

His Pace Betrayed Him Not.

"Ah," said wise Erudite to Miss Shrewd at a party the other night, "what a sad, sad face that gentleman has over there is the corner. I have been watching him all the evening and I have not seen him smile once. His heart is heavy with some mighty grief. I am sure of it, and have been wondering what it could be and letting my heart go out to him in sympathy. Do tell me if you know his history."

I rather enjoyed the idea of only staying one day in a place. I thought it would be interesting to see the different towns. and I would never have a chance to get sick of a place or a hotel. When we left the city where we had been playing there was a look of settled melancholy on our comedian's face. I asked him what was the matter. "Thave just said a long farewell to my diges-tion," said he. "Yes," said the leading man, "so have I. I could have went when I left my comfortable room this morning. I knew I would not see an other spring mattress for weeks." If there is anything in the world that people in country towns look down upon and despise it is "show folks,"

When we arrived at the hotel we found it a comfortable looking wooden building, "This looks quite homelike and nice," I said. "I wish I had your hopeful disposition," said the comedian gloomily. We went up to the parlor and waited to be shown to our rooms. After we had been there for some time a shock headed boy appeared with our keys. My room was bare and comfortless, there was a sheet iron stove in the corner, but there was no fire in it. I called the boy's attention to this fact, and he said he like thunds. There was nothing fit to ear on the table. I drank a cup of some strange compound, which they called tea. It neither cheered nor inchriated me. When we got to the "opera house" we found a dirty little stage and dirt; little dressing rooms. It was so cold in the dressing room that we had to break the ice in the water patcher. We shivered through a performance. The people know, when so many not only worthless, but posit vely injurious drugs are con stantly flooding the market under varius names guises, that the New Style Vinegar Bilters is as bad as any of them ! They do not know, of course, unless they have the courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who buy it once buy it always. Why don't you try it, reader? It is ent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but a dollar for a very large bottle. Try once and you will never be so glad of anything in your life.
